

Tam's

Winter Holiday
Photo-zine

For the holidays we set ourselves a challenge - to do a photo-zine of photographs taken over the holidays with at least one per day. Well, the weather did not help but we tried lots of different things.

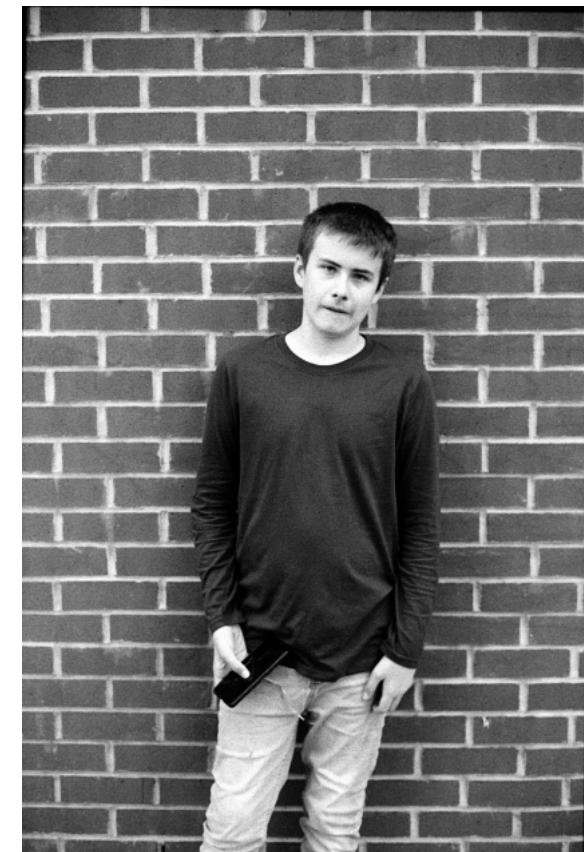

Tam took all of the photos that he is not in. Most on old film cameras with a small selection that he has taken with a digital camera. He did 90% of the film processing and almost all of the film scanning.

The layout and photo selection is a joint effort and no we did not manage to use a photo from each day (so a little cheating took place)

We took over 9 rolls of film, some 300 plus photos and picked our favourites and put them either on the day or close to it.

His mam would be so proud of the work he has put into this. She would be grinning from ear to ear of how her little baby has grown up.

So this is the result. Enjoy.

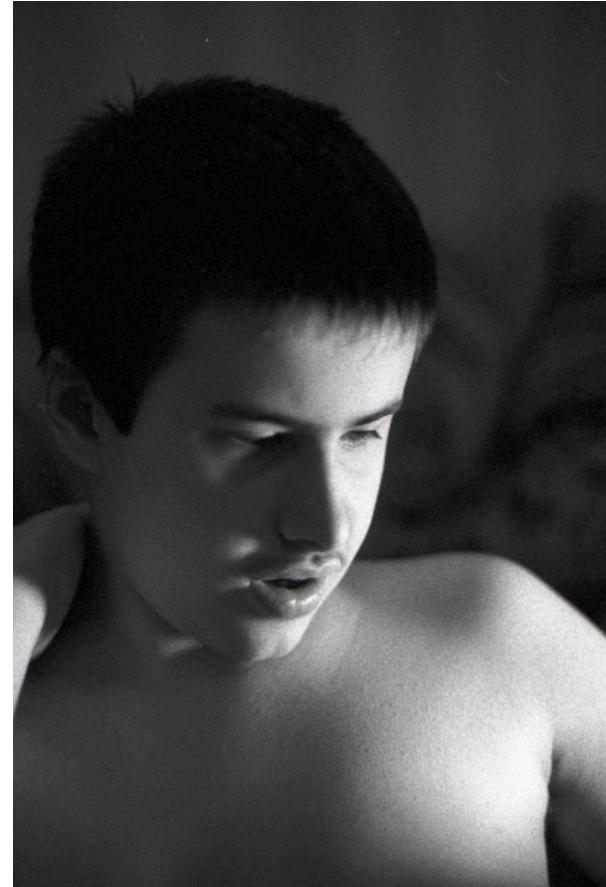

Dedicated to Mammy - missed more every day
